In 1940 more than 30 million gallons of untreated sewage were dumped into the waters of the Hampton Roads each day. Concerned citizens responded by voting to create the Hampton Roads Sanitation District to prevent pollution of area waterways. Seventy years later, HRSD has grown into one of the nation's premiere wastewater treatment agencies with 13 treatment plants capable of treating up to 249 million gallons of wastewater every day.

As we commemorate HRSD's 70 years of service to the region, we celebrate the efforts of the many businesses and industries that work to help HRSD achieve its Vision: Future generations will inherit clean waterways and be able to keep them clean.
